

McElroy Metal Manufacturers Statement

McElroy Metal is an employee-owned business founded in 1963. Headquartered in Bossier City, LA, McElroy Metal is a recognized industry leader in the metal roofing and siding industry. From humble beginnings with one location over sixty years ago, McElroy Metal has expanded to have a national footprint with 87 manufacturing and distribution locations across the United States. Two members of the McElroy family are currently active in the business. Tem McElroy serves as Chairman while his son, Ian McElroy, serves as President. Tem and Ian are the son and grandson of McElroy Metal's founder, Thomas E. McElroy, Sr.

McElroy Metal Holdings

Component and Metal Building Manufacturing

McElroy Metal owns and operates 14 manufacturing locations across the United States. Growth has been achieved through a combination of acquisition and green field development. Monarch Metal Buildings, a McElroy Metal division, manufactures frames for pre-engineered buildings.

Insulated Metal Panel Manufacturing

Recognizing a growing demand for energy efficient building materials, McElroy Metal entered into a joint venture with Green Span Profiles in 2011 to manufacture Insulated Metal Panels (IMP). Green Span Profiles currently has two state-of-the-art facilities in Waller, TX to manufacture IMP's ranging from 2" – 6".

Distribution

McElroy Metal is active in the distribution of building materials through McElroy Metal Service Center and Metal Mart divisions. Combined, these two entities operate 73 locations across the United States.

Industry Leadership

McElroy Metal has a history of active involvement with industry trade groups and associations. While active with many organizations, McElroy Metal has current Board of Director representation on the Metal Roofing Alliance and the National Frame Building Association.
